

REMEMBERED NOTHING, MRS. DE SAULLES SWEARS

Thought of Being Denied Child Uppermost When "Coming to" in Jail

SLAYER NOW ON STAND

Chilian Widow Tells Tragic Story of Bitter Ending of Her Romance

MINNOLA, N. Y., Nov. 26.

"He said I couldn't have my boy. When I came to myself again I was in jail. I still seemed to hear his voice telling me I could not have my boy—ever."

With this dramatic climax to her testimony, Mrs. Blanca de Saulles told the jury hearing her trial for murder the story of the actual killing of her husband this afternoon.

Mrs. de Saulles said she was stunned. She remembered nothing of firing the four shots which killed de Saulles.

Convinced by her former husband's tales that de Saulles was not at home on the night of the killing, she said she ordered a taxi cab to drive at 10 o'clock to The Box, so she could get there before de Saulles returned and take her boy home with her.

"I loaned little Jack to him on August 21," she said, "and when he wasn't returned at the specified time I called up and found they were putting my boy to bed at de Saulles's house."

She described the night of the killing in an odd way, a Mr. Inglehart, before she started, but was told the matter was too delicate for his interference.

"So I called a taxi," she said, in a slightly quiet voice, a pause between each sentence, "took my maid and my dog, Sammi, and went alone."

TITLE STORY OF TRAGEDY Mrs. Blanca de Saulles went on the witness stand today to lay bare a romance which ended in the killing of her husband.

The petite, girlish widow from Chile, as she sat with half-closed eyes and a face as colorless as death itself, did not deny she shot and killed Jack de Saulles. Her story testimony was guided wholly by a deaf questioning by her counsel, Henry Eberhart.

She told of a fall on an auditorium when but eight years old. She was struck on her head, she said. Then followed a hernia of a sunstroke and of being thrown from an automobile in Chile in 1913.

She told of being introduced to Jack de Saulles early in 1914, and of his courtship. She became engaged to him in August, 1914, she testified.

When asked to identify a picture of herself taken on the day previous to her wedding, she smiled for the first time, replying: "That is mine."

Mrs. de Saulles told of her wedding in Paris, the honeymoon trip to London and America and of the return to Chile.

She told of how disappointed Jack de Saulles was when he learned of her return, expressing himself in these words, she said: "Why, that's nothing at all."

Her fortune was estimated at $100,000. After briefly describing her return from Chile, the witness was asked to identify a revolver, alleged to have been bought for her by her husband.

She glanced at the weapon, shuddered perceptibly and turned her head as she told of the purchase.

The pistol was the one with which she shot her husband.

Mrs. de Saulles told of the advice given her by her husband regarding the use of the pistol. He thought she would do alone a good deal.

Then, on Christmas, 1915, the baby came, she said. She told of being at the de Saulles home at South Bethlehem, Pa., at that time and said her husband occasionally made weekend visits to her.
